1. INTRODUCTION

The Bodossaki Foundation (Greece), in consortium with the NGO Support Centre (Republic of Cyprus) and the Marangopoulos Foundation for Human Rights (Greece), announces the Open Call for project proposals 'Preventing and Combatting Diverse Forms of Gender-based Violence', addressed to Civil Society Organisations (CSOs) in Greece and in the Republic of Cyprus. The Call is implemented under the programme 'Voicing Opposition to Domestic, Sexual, Cyber Violence & Harmful Practices' (VOICES) and aims to strengthen prevention of and response to diverse forms of gender-based violence (GBV) by supporting CSOs active in this field, and enhancing their organisational capacity, sustainability and policy involvement.

VOICES is co-funded by the European Union, through the Citizens, Equality, Rights and Values (CERV) programme, as well as by the Bodossaki Foundation, the NGO Support Centre and the Marangopoulos Foundation for Human Rights, with a total programme budget of €2,5 million.

Over the programme's three-year implementation period (February 2026 - February 2029), VOICES will support approximately 37 CSO projects (29 in Greece and 8 in the Republic of Cyprus) through this Open Call. Funded initiatives will focus on preventing and combatting diverse forms of gender-based violence (GBV), strengthening survivor-centred protection systems, and expanding access to justice and specialised services.

A total of €1,625,000 (€1,300,000 for Greece and €325,000 for the Republic of Cyprus) will be allocated through this Open Call.

In addition to financial support, VOICES will offer a comprehensive capacity-building programme, developed to address the specific organisational development and thematic needs of CSOs in Greece and the Republic of Cyprus, promoting their sustainability, advocacy impact, and policy engagement.

2. BACKGROUND

Gender-based violence remains one of the most pervasive human rights violations across the European Union, including in Greece and Cyprus, undermining fundamental freedoms, equality, dignity and social cohesion, as guaranteed under Article 2 of the Treaty of the European Union and the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights.

In Greece and Cyprus, these challenges are particularly acute, as reflected in the findings of international monitoring bodies, including GREVIO and the CEDAW Committee. Despite the existence of legislative and policy frameworks, gaps persist in both their scope and implementation, while structural and operational constraints continue to undermine the effectiveness of prevention and protection systems. Such constraints include, for example, geographic disparities, limited outreach mechanisms, and insufficient cross-sectoral cooperation between judicial authorities, service providers, and institutions, all of which hinder a coordinated and comprehensive response. Moreover, the rapid digitalisation of everyday life has enabled new and aggravated forms of GBV, such as online harassment, cyberstalking and non-consensual image-based abuse. Responses to these emerging risks remain uneven: adequate case-management mechanisms are still limited, specialised and tailored support for victims is not consistently available, and frontline professionals often lack the expertise required to identify and address digital forms of GBV.

In this context, CSOs can play a vital role in preventing and addressing GBV, particularly at the community level. Through awareness-raising, outreach and capacity-building, CSOs can strengthen prevention efforts, improve access to and the quality of support services, and enhance the skills of professionals and stakeholders, including in remote and rural areas. By fostering cooperation and the exchange of good practices, they can contribute to more effective prevention of and response to diverse forms of GBV.

Thus, further strengthening the enabling environment for CSOs remains essential to maximise their impact and long-term sustainability. Enhanced structural and financial support could help expand the scope, continuity and resilience of their interventions, while more systematic consultation and closer integration into policymaking processes would reinforce their contribution to comprehensive and coordinated responses. Continued investment in capacity-building, including access to specialised training and institutional development opportunities, would further support the quality, reach and effectiveness of their work.

In this light, the consortium invites CSOs with legal status in Greece and the Republic of Cyprus, active in preventing and combatting diverse forms of gender-based violence, to submit project proposals for the VOICES regranting programme. By supporting targeted initiatives, the programme seeks to contribute to strengthening prevention, protection and coordinated responses to gender-based violence across both countries.

3. OBJECTIVES, PRIORITIES AND TARGET GROUPS

3.1 OBJECTIVES

The Open Call aims to prevent and address diverse forms of gender-based violence in Greece and the Republic of Cyprus by providing financial support and targeted capacity-building to CSOs active in the prevention of and response to diverse forms of GBV.

VOICES also aims to strengthen the advocacy role, policy involvement and organisational development of CSOs active in fighting GBV, through offering a comprehensive programme of capacity building activities. Particular priority is given to small¹, grassroots², rural and remote³ CSOs, which often operate closest to affected communities but face barriers in accessing funding, training and institutional support. By reinforcing their capacities and access to resources, the call seeks to promote more inclusive, locally grounded and sustainable responses to gender-based violence in both countries.

² A grassroots CSO for the purposes of this programme is a non-governmental organization that originates and operates at the local level, usually driven by community members who are passionate about a particular cause or issue, such as poverty, education, health, environment and human rights. These organizations often work to address social, economic, and environmental problems within their own communities, without the influence or support of larger organizations or governments. They are typically formed by volunteers who are directly impacted by the issues they seek to address, and they rely heavily on the participation and support of the community to achieve their goals. They often use community mobilization and empowerment strategies to bring about change, and they may engage in advocacy and public education to raise awareness about their cause.

3.2 PRIORITIES

Each CSO project must address one of the following three priority areas of this Open Call:

- Preventing and Combatting Domestic and Sexual Violence (Priority 1)
- Preventing and Combatting Gender-Based Cyber Violence (Priority 2)
- Preventing and Combatting GBV-related Harmful Practices (Priority 3)

Regardless of the thematic focus, all applications are expected to demonstrate a strong survivor-centred, trauma-informed and rights-based approach, aligned with EU values and relevant EU legal and policy frameworks. All activities must uphold survivors' dignity, autonomy, confidentiality and safety at every stage of the project. Projects should include appropriate safeguards to actively prevent re-victimisation and secondary victimisation, including through ethical engagement practices, safe participation methods, and careful communication of sensitive information.

Applicants must also pay particular attention to gender- and age-related needs and risks, as well as to the specific circumstances of women and men, girls and boys, in all their diversity. Special consideration should be given to persons experiencing intersectional discrimination or facing heightened vulnerability, such as people with a migrant background, LGBTIQ persons, racial or ethnic minorities which include women at risk of harmful practices, Roma people, women or children with disabilities or facing mental health issues, pregnant women, women in detention, women living in rural areas and elderly women.

Proposals should clearly explain how these principles are embedded in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the project activities.

PRIORITY 1: PREVENTING AND COMBATTING DOMESTIC AND SEXUAL VIOLENCE

This priority aims to prevent and combat domestic and sexual violence through comprehensive, coordinated, and survivor-centered actions. It supports initiatives that address the root causes of violence, strengthen protection and support services for survivors, improve investigation and prosecution, and ensure effective cooperation among institutions and stakeholders. The overall objective is to reduce the prevalence of violence, enhance survivor safety and recovery, and promote behavioural change and accountability, in line with human rights and gender-equality standards, based on a clear understanding of the gendered dynamics of domestic and sexual violence.

Activities under this priority may include prevention and awareness-raising measures that challenge harmful gender stereotypes, promote equality and respectful relationships, and increase public understanding of consent and non-violence. They may also support education and training for professionals in relevant sectors, early identification of risk situations, and targeted interventions for vulnerable or at-risk groups. The priority further seeks to ensure the availability and accessibility of quality, survivor-centered support services, including safe accommodation, healthcare, psychosocial support, and legal assistance, while promoting effective referral mechanisms and coordinated multi-agency responses. Strengthening institutional capacity, improving data collection and monitoring, and enhancing accountability for perpetrators are also essential components contributing to a sustainable and effective national response.

PRIORITY 2: PREVENTING AND COMBATTING GENDER-BASED CYBER VIOLENCE

This priority addresses gender-based cyber violence as an evolving and increasingly pervasive form of gender-based violence that is perpetrated, facilitated or amplified through digital technologies. It recognises the growing scale, complexity and cross-border nature of online abuse, as well as its profound impact on the safety, dignity, privacy and equal participation of women and girls. It supports activities aimed at preventing and responding to online abuse such as cyber gender-based incitement to violence or hatred, cyberstalking, online harassment, the non-consensual distribution of intimate images (including those facilitated or exacerbated by AI technologies), sextortion and online grooming. Projects funded under this priority should demonstrate a clear understanding of the gendered dimension of digital violence, the specific risks and vulnerabilities arising in online environments, and the barriers survivors face in seeking protection, redress and support.

PRIORITY 3: PREVENTING AND COMBATTING GBV- RELATED HARMFUL PRACTICES

This priority supports activities aimed at preventing and addressing gender-based harmful practices, recognising their deep roots in structural inequality, harmful social norms and intersecting forms of discrimination. Funded projects under this priority should focus on addressing harmful practices such as Female Genital Mutilation (FGM), Intersex Genital Mutilation (IGM), forced abortion, forced sterilisation, child and forced marriage, honour-related violence, gynaecological and obstetric violence, forced contraception, forced pregnancy, sex-selective practices, denial of education to girls, forced disclosure of sexual orientation or gender identity, forced medicalisation of trans individuals, conversion practices imposed on LGBTIQ persons, and other forms of gender-based oppression. Proposals should demonstrate an understanding of the cultural, social and institutional contexts in which harmful practices occur, as well as the barriers faced by survivors in accessing protection, support and justice.

Each organisation can submit only one application to the Open Call, choosing one out of the three priority areas, either as lead applicant or as partner. Detailed information on the application process can be found in the 'Application Guidelines'.

3.3 TARGET GROUPS

The funded projects will target survivors and individuals at risk of GBV, with a particular focus on women and girls⁴ facing intersecting and multiple forms of discrimination. This includes those in remote or isolated areas, older women, women experiencing homelessness or substance use disorders, Roma women and girls, refugee and migrant women and girls, trafficking survivors, women and girls with disabilities, and LGBTIQ persons. Priority is also given to victims of gender-based cyber violence and harmful practices⁵.

Additional target groups include witnesses, victims’ relatives, friends and bystanders who can play a stronger supportive role; frontline professionals and service providers—healthcare, law enforcement, social services, tech companies, community and faith leaders, and educators—whose coordinated action is essential. Media actors and journalists are also targeted to address gendered attacks and promote ethical, survivor-sensitive and non-stereotypical reporting. The funded projects will further engage national and local authorities responsible for survivor protection, along with policymakers at local, national and EU levels, and the wider public (including men and boys), in order to strengthen prevention, accountability and response to GBV.

3.4 FUNDING STREAMS

The Open Call for proposals is structured into two separate funding streams designed to accommodate CSOs of varying sizes and capacities.

Stream 1 will support large-scale projects with grants ranging from €30,000.01 to €60,000.00. Projects must each address one of the three priority areas outlined above and may be implemented either by a single CSO or by a partnership between two CSOs. Projects will have a duration of 12 months (with the possibility of being extended up to an additional 2 months, where duly justified). Approximately 19 projects (15 in Greece and 4 in the Republic of Cyprus) will be supported under this stream, with a total budget of €1,088,750 (€871,000 for Greece and €217,750 for the Republic of Cyprus).

Stream 2 will support small-scale projects implemented by small organisations⁶ with grants ranging from €20,000.00 to €30,000.00. Projects must each address one of the three priority areas outlined above. They will be implemented by a single small CSO, with a duration of 10-12 months (with the possibility of being extended up to an additional 2 months, where duly justified). Approximately 18 projects (14 in Greece and 4 in the Republic of Cyprus) will be supported under this stream, with a total budget of €536,250 (€429,000 for Greece, and €107,250 for the Republic of Cyprus).

During phase one of the evaluation process, each project application will be assessed for compliance with the administrative and eligibility criteria of the application. More information regarding the administrative and eligibility criteria of the application can be found in Section 11 of the 'Application Guidelines'.

The project budget, the Declaration of Honour (both for the lead applicant and the partner, where applicable), and the Child Protection Policy (for projects involving activities with direct contact with children) are considered core documents and are mandatory for the submission of an application. Applications that fail to include these documents will be automatically rejected.

The templates for the budget form and the Declaration of Honour are available on the programme's webpage.

Supporting documents include financial documentation and other required material, as specified in Section 14 of the 'Application Guidelines'.

All documents, both mandatory and supporting, are required to be submitted at the time of application submission. Where supporting documents are missing, the Programme Implementation Team may request them, in which case organisations will be granted five (5) working days to submit them.

Organisations whose applications are rejected due to non-compliance with the administrative and eligibility criteria of the application will be informed by email and will have the right to submit an appeal within five working days from the date of notification. The right to appeal shall be exercised only once at this stage.

Appeals must be fully justified and documented and submitted electronically to the email addresses indicated in the Contact Information section, no later than 17:00 (local time) on the fifth (5th) and final day of the appeal deadline. Appeals will be examined by the Appeals Committee, and organisations will be informed of its decision within ten (10) working days following the appeal submission deadline. The decision of the Appeals Committee is final and irrevocable.

In phase two, applications that meet the administrative and eligibility criteria of the application will be evaluated by two (2) impartial evaluators appointed by the Consortium. At least one of them will be independent (external) to the Consortium and selected through an open call procedure. All evaluators are required to sign a declaration of absence of conflict of interest in relation to the organisations whose applications they assess.

Each evaluator will assess the project application individually and independently, in accordance with the Evaluation Criteria set out below. The average score of the two evaluations will be used for the evaluation of the application. A minimum average score of 60 points is required for an application to proceed further in the evaluation process.

If the difference between the scores exceeds 30% of the higher score, the application will be assessed by a third evaluator, appointed by the Consortium and independent of all applicant organisations and the Consortium. In such cases, the average of the two closest scores will constitute the final average score and will be used for the ranking of the application.

Applications achieving a minimum score of 60 points will be ranked according to their final score, without any modification to the order of ranking.

In phase three of the selection process, the shortlisted applications, as well as an additional 10% of the shortlisted applications, will be subject to a legal eligibility assessment of the lead applicant and the partner (where applicable). During this phase, the Consortium will assess the legal eligibility of the lead applicant and the partner (where applicable) and will request the necessary documents proving their legal eligibility and for which they signed the aforementioned Declaration of Honour during the application submission stage. In such cases, organisations will have five (5) working days to submit the requested documents, following a relevant request from the Programme Implementation Team.

Organisations whose applications are rejected due to non-compliance with the legal eligibility criteria of the lead applicant and/or the partner (where applicable) will be informed by email and will have the right to submit an appeal within five (5) working days from the date of notification. The right to appeal may be exercised only once at this stage. Appeals must be fully justified and documented and submitted electronically to the email address indicated in the Contact Information section, no later than 17:00 (local time) on the fifth (5th) and final day of the deadline of the appeal. Appeals will be examined by the Appeals Committee, and organisations will be informed of its decision within ten (10) working days following the appeal submission deadline. The decision of the Appeals Committee is final and irrevocable.

In the event of a final rejection due to non-compliance with the legal eligibility criteria, another organisation from the ranking list will be selected and assessed under the same procedure.

The application evaluation criteria and the maximum score per criterion are as follows:

The Selection Committee will examine the shortlist of applications based on the scores awarded and the evaluators' comments. It may modify the ranking of applications only in duly justified cases, where such modification is necessary to achieve the programme's objectives. In addition, the Selection Committee may adjust the budgets of approved projects, where necessary, to ensure value for money, including in cases of ineligible activities or costs, or where activities are considered over-budgeted. In such cases, the Consortium may request clarifications from the concerned organisations.

The Selection Committee will ensure that at least 70% of projects selected under the Open Call include women/girls as a target group (subject to availability of eligible shortlisted projects meeting this criterion). Moreover, where an insufficient number of eligible applications is received under Stream 2 (small grants), the corresponding funding amount may be reallocated to Stream 1 (large grants), in accordance with the ranking list of applications.

The decision of the Selection Committee is final and not subject to change.

The final decision will be communicated directly to the applicant organisations, and the list of approved projects will be published on the programme webpage within four (4) months of the application submission deadline.

Organisations will have the right to request feedback on their applications following a relevant announcement.

¹³ A small CSO for the purposes of this programme is a CSO with an average total annual revenue (taxable and non-taxable) of less than €80,000.

¹⁴ For the purposes of this programme:

In Greece, all areas are considered rural and/or remote areas, except all the municipalities of the prefecture of Attica (except the islands) and all the municipalities of the prefecture of Thessaloniki.

In the Republic of Cyprus, rural and/or remote areas are considered all areas except the municipalities of the cities of Nicosia, Limassol and Larnaca.

13. GENDER EQUALITY AND NON-DISCRIMINATION MAINSTREAMING

Gender equality and non-discrimination constitute core horizontal principles of the VOICES programme. All proposed projects under this open call must be designed and implemented in a way that recognises and addresses inequalities and unequal power relations arising from gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, age, racial or ethnic origin, migration status, socio-economic background, geographical isolation or other intersecting identities.

For projects addressing any of the priority areas of the call, domestic and sexual violence, gender-based cyber violence and/or GBV-related harmful practices, all proposed activities must apply a strong gender and intersectionality lens. Interventions should be responsive to the specific needs of women and girls, LGBTIQ persons, migrants, ethnic minorities, persons with disabilities and other marginalised groups. Applicants must demonstrate how gender equality and non-discrimination principles are embedded in their project design, partnerships, outreach and communication, as well as in their efforts to challenge harmful norms and improve equitable access to rights, protection and support services.

Projects aimed at preventing or responding to GBV, including those that provide support to survivors or individuals at risk, must adopt a survivor-centred, rights-based and trauma-informed approach, consistent with the Istanbul Convention and Directive \(EU\) 2024/1385.

To ensure meaningful and measurable impact, applicants must integrate gender equality and non-discrimination considerations throughout the full project cycle, from needs assessment and outreach strategies to service delivery, monitoring and reporting. This includes, where relevant, accessible communication and venues, disaggregated data collection, targeted approaches for marginalised populations, and the active involvement of relevant community actors.

Further guidance on integrating gender mainstreaming and non-discrimination is provided in the Application Guidelines. Applicants are also encouraged to consult the Gender Equality Strategy 2026-2030 and other relevant EU and Council of Europe standards.

14. CHILD PROTECTION POLICY

In accordance with the European Commission Directives, funded organisations that will implement activities involving direct contact with children¹⁵ are required to have a Child Protection Policy in line with the Keeping Children Safe Child Safeguarding Standards. Therefore, at the application stage, any organisation (both the lead applicant and the partner, where applicable) proposing projects that include activities involving direct contact with children must submit their current Child Protection Policy aligned with these standards. The Child Protection Policy is considered a core document, not a supporting document. Applications that fail to include this document will be automatically rejected.

In addition, applicants should ensure that the project proposal is based on a child rights approach, i.e. that all the rights of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights, the United Nations

Convention on the Rights of the Child \(UNCRC\) and the Optional protocols, are promoted, respected, protected and fulfilled. The project should address children as rights holders and should ensure their participation in the design and implementation of the project.

CSOs (both the lead applicants and any partners) selected for funding that their project will include activities involving direct contact with children should also be guided in their work and philosophy by the best interests of the child, doing no harm and respecting the rights of the child as outlined in European and international legislation.

More information on what a Child Protection Policy should include are available in the ‘Application Guidelines’.

During the application submission period, an online training session on drafting a Child Protection Policy will be held.
